Columbia PSI, LLC hires General Manager.

VANCOUVER, WA (USA) – October 24, 2024 – Rick Goode, Chairman and CEO of Columbia Machine, Inc., announces that Columbia PSI, LLC, (“CPSI”) located in Denver, CO, has hired Jeremy Dwyer as General Manager. Jeremy brings extensive experience to CPSI and will lead the team by driving product innovation and growth in the markets served.

With a degree in Mechanical Engineering, Jeremy brings over ten years of experience in the factory automation industry. He has previously held leadership positions in design engineering and operational roles. Jeremy will use his background to focus on the core values of CPSI and will work closely with his management team to create strategic plans aimed at advancing factory automation technology, driving productivity for customers, prioritizing safety and ensuring CPSI’s commitment to market leadership.

“I’m excited to have Jeremy join our Global Leadership Team,” said Rick Goode. “CPSI products and services play a critical role in our long-term strategy to help our customers with their factory automation needs in bagging, palletizing and packaging. Jeremy’s experience and leadership will be a great addition to the CPSI team and our Columbia Group of Companies.”

“Jeremy’s previous work experience, positive attitude, and commitment to customer satisfaction make him a great cultural fit for CPSI,” said Tim Goode, interim General Manager of CPSI. “CPSI has an exciting future, and with Jeremy leading the charge, the Company will continue to thrive.”

“I’m excited to join the Columbia Group of Companies. Columbia’s Core Values of Innovation, Integrity, Collaboration, Improvement and Growth align well with my leadership style and beliefs,” said Jeremy Dwyer, General Manager of CPSI. “I’m excited to carry on the past success of CPSI and the vision Columbia has for growth and innovation.”
